

Scenario based on the Interview responses

5 Days of Covid !!!

I want to share my experience about my first five days of using video conferencing apps under Covid 19 epidemic. My first day wasn't that easy. I entered the meeting but I was unable to hear anything or find any icon to open the mic just “ test audio “. In this situation, I got help from my little brother who was familiar with this app using it under Covid 19 school lockdown. Fortunately, it was just an intro to the content .

Here we go on my second day when the meeting suddenly ended while listening to the professor, and I didn't know what happened until we started a new meeting. The professor told us that we should pay for an unlimited time meeting “I think you can predict which app I was using” . My third day was a little better. Our professor asked if we have an official mail to use another app with unlimited time access. We swap to a new one but I don't like it because it was less friendly than the first one.

I faced another problem on my fourth day,“ shut down the mic !! “ I received this message from my colleague while I was opening from my mobile phone. I realized that the touch screen unintentionally opened the mic so I decided to open from my PC and put a sticker on the camera just to be sure nothing would happen. Finally, it's my fifth day and it worked well without facing any problems.

There were a lot of trials with some embarrassing situations but now it became easier for me to attend or host online meetings. I wish we get rid of Covid19 in this new year. Even though our use of these apps may continue to a lower extent after the end of lockdown, we are currently aware of using these apps in a more efficient manner. Thanks for reading my story.
